

Code of Conduct

The code of conduct is to be agreed upon, followed, and upheld by each member of this group. Every member of the group shall understand and agree to the following:

- Every member shall be respectful to each other and respect their professional boundaries.
- Every member shall conduct their work in a timely and professional manner.
- Every member shall attend each weekly Software Engineering class (every Wednesday) and meetings within the week, unless there is a medical emergency, a valid reason for lack of attendance, and they must notify the group of their absence in a reasonable and timely manner.
 - If a member of the group fails to attend three (3) or more sessions without valid reasoning accepted by the group and reasonable notice shall be reported to the tutor.
- Every member shall be inclusive; no discrimination of any type.
- Every member shall understand their role for the given task(s) and do their part in completing their given tasks.
- Every member shall be polite and professional when giving feedback/criticism.
 - All feedback and criticism shall be constructive.
- Every member shall help each other with any given task, to a reasonable extent. The group was created and agreed upon beforehand.
- Every member shall understand that should there be an issue, they can contact the tutor at any time, but it must be discussed with the group first.
